DAVID GONZALES

Summary

An organized and detail orientated team player seeking to join a dynamic production studio. My passion lies within the creative team environment of the production studio. I am comfortable at adapting to various artistic styles and am skilled at creating 2D and 3D art for animation and the web. I have a strong traditional art foundation acquired from the Animation Fine Arts Program at California State University, Fullerton and I have over six years experience with web development applications.

Experience

2010 – Web Developer, VoltDelta Corporation

Currently employed. Responsible for creating and maintaining internal web sites including graphics, customer technical support, and web server functionality

2009 – Maya 3D Animation Apprentice

Guided study under the direction of Scott Easley (veteran game artist and author of the Gnommon School DVD Pipelines for Video Game Animation)

2008 – Character Modeler Intern, Dream Machine Game Studios

Responsible for creating low to high poly character models for in-game and cinematic sequences. Edited and advised fellow interns to improve their 3D models

2007 – Assistant Animator, “How the Kitty Crumbles” Flash Animation Film

(Produced by Nickelodeon Animation Studios in association with Cal State Fullerton)
Assisted with Flash character animation
